Sometimes failure is funny: Dimeo's NYE party

It looks like Dimeo had a fucking disaster at his NYE party, and totally fucked over everybody who came. Anthony, maybe it's time to stop running from your destiny and go farm blueberries full time!:

30 minutes? I mean, I could sort of understand it if the blueberry-flavored champagne had dried up somewhere close to midnight, but 30 FUCKING MINUTES???

I suspect that Dimeo Sr. is not going to be too happy for having to dip into the blueberry fortune to pay D-III's legal bills on this goat rope.

This is from the 2d story you posted.

It is, EASILY, one of the greatest lines in the history of modern journalism:

"The organizers also said that when partiers left, so did some works of art, and they want those back. "

Way to go Philly. Way to go.

Drunken DJ

01-03-2006 11:27 AM

According to the second article partygoers walked off with some of the artwork in the restaurant. Im sure whoever did will also try and get a refund. I wish I could say its too bad, but Dimeo is a tool. Besides, who organizes and charges for a NYE party and then doesnt keep the restaurant informed of the latest head count?

IamRob

01-03-2006 11:30 AM

I bet he meant to order the right amount of everything, but his lazy eye was looking at the wrong page and as he said, "I'll have this many cigars," the company thought he was referring to the direction his eyes were going.

I knew 2006 would be a great year...I just didn't think I'd realize it so soon.

Poor guy, I guess event planning won't be popping up on his resume anytime soon.

Focus: How do you fuck up a NYE party this bad? If you're throwing an OPEN bar party just make sure you've got TWICE as much alcohol as you think you'll need. The Dimeo crowd probably went nuts when they ran out of wine spritzers and sea breezes.

My God, even someone with half a brain can do simple maths. If the restaurant only had a capacity of 325 guests, then how the hell did he sell over 700 tickets? Aren't you supposed to print a certain amount and that's it? And how did he calculate alcohol? ## Lalor

I bet some of the guests lost their shit when the bar ran out, and they saw DiMeo stumbling around with the last white wine spritzers, one eye half open, hitting on anything that could potentially have a vagina.

That's got to be the one moment in life he wished he didn't naturally look and act like a drunken tool, even while sober. It's comparable to eating an entire Grande Meal in front of all of Ethiopia.

One of these days I'm waiting for someone to hit that berry peddling fuckpop so hard that his lazy eye wakes up.

Those are photos from 2005. My guess is that the 35 people who went to his party last year didn't drain the bar quite as fast.

sk1917

01-03-2006 12:22 PM

Yeah imagine my surprise when at 10:45 on NYE 20 people came knocking on my door to join the party because theirs ran out of alcohol at 9. Now I wasn't aware that it was DiMeo's party until the next day but Jesus Christ talk about dropping the ball. My friends said people were talking art off the walls, small scuffles, and a lot of talk about taking them to small claims court. DiMeo said that each case would be handled separatly for refunds...fucking idiot. He couldn't be reached for comment either. Big fucking surprise.

I hope he goes down in horrible public flames for this shit.

Sure did.

"To all the people who enjoyed and responded to "Philalawyer"'s blog, we sincerely thank you. He was overjoyed to see how much people liked his writing. So much so, that he was considering leaving the legal profession and continuing this on a full-time basis. He had spoken with three publishing companies in early April, met with one and was considering a book deal.

I'm a civil litigation attorney out of Chicago that had gotten to know Philalawyer well through e-mail and occasionally on the phone.
Unfortunately, Lance is no longer with us. He was involved in a major collision with another car while driving home from work three weeks ago.

From what his wife had told me on the phone, he was spiraling down professionally and personally. He was drinking more and more after work and this is most likely what led to his unfortunate and much too early death."

Take a look at some of the other galleries. I'm pretty sure that ADIII takes a couple hours to pick out an expression that he wants to use for the whole night then somehow freezes his face like that for the evening. It doesn't fucking change at all.

There could be a picture of that douchebag passing a kidney stone and he'd have the same goofy spaced out look on his face in it I'm sure.

Exactly what range of acting can this guy think he's capable of when he can't even change his fucking expression throughout a night.

It would be pleasingly ironic if Kabir sued him for defamation, now wouldn't it?

This response seems lacking from such a PR extraordinare. At least in my opinion.

Under his interests, did he honestly have to list every band, movie and other shit he's done, seen, or thought about? The lists just keep on going. Some of his favorite bands include A*teens (they did a cover of ABBA's Dancing queen), George Michael, Fall out Boy, "Jigga" (not that there's anything wrong with "Jigga" but Jay Z would have been more appropriate) Earth, Wind and Fire, Bjork... the list goes on

That's the problem with being an heir, so much pressure to "keep it in the family."

When the fuck did he become a model?

And what the fuck does the photographer say to him to get him to make that face?

"OK Anthony, I have this...this...this brilliant idea. Hear me out now. I want you to make a face like you were getting fisted by an angry gorilla. Ok, now mold your face to what you think you would look like if a leper were about to take a shit in your mouth. WORK WITH ME. EXCELLENT!"

The site does say "model-host," which would imply that s/he is really a man.

Look! His hair matches the slope in his eyes! In fact, every feature on his face slopes up to his left.

It's a matter of nomenclature. It just matters which word you put in front of model. In his case, it's either "before" if you're referring to plastic surgery or "after" if you're referring to getting fisted by an angry gorilla, as you so eloquently put it.

He just has a very loose definition of model. Having posed for a photo before is apparently the criteria.

On a side note I can not find a single acting credit for him. His name doesn't even register with a search of IMDB.

So it's not just that he has a lazy eye, it's the whole right side of his face?

I didn't have any luck with "Anthony Dimeo III" or "Blueberry Heir", so I tried just "Anthony Dimeo" and came up with this. I doubt it's him, but he does mention "Hack" on his website.

Edit: I just looked at his myspace page and noticed two things. First, why does he write "SAG actor" instead of just "actor"? I've never seen anyone do this before. Second, if he's really 5'10", he must know some extremely tall women.

I saw that; however it lists the job as property master so it was not an acting role.

SAG is the screen actors guild, I do not know much about acting but apparently if you aren't a member of SAG you are a nobody.

I wouldn't go that far. These are the requirements.

It's seriously not that hard. I can think of two girls I've dated who bragged about being a part of the SAG and they were genuinely awful at acting. Like thespian vomit.

Yes, I know this. My point is he writes SAG actor, while most people would just write actor.

When I heard about this, I had a funny feeling whose party it was. I didn't research it though. This is hilarious. Not shocking in the least. I actually saw him on his way there on Saturday night, I grabbed my husband and started freaking out. All I could say was DOUCHE, LEFT. I was hyperventilating. He gave me a bitchy stare and he was wearing a tux with a vest that looked like a collaborative work between a 6 year old and Bobby Trendy.

EDIT: It appeared to be a multi-color striped vest. Not unlike a rainbow.

The wife and I do acting as a hobby. Ten plus years of amatuer, until this year when she landed her first professional role in a musical. We had to learn about the SAG (recorded media) and Equity Union (live theater) on pretty short order.

A SAG card, while just as commonplace as this thread would imply, does indeed ascertain that he was paid for his time/voice/image at least once. It isn't that hard.

He is still a fag, though.

is DIII a blueberry heir or just a blueberry rabbit

Amazing that the PR Powerhouse has had such a weak wristed response. No balls here to own up to responsibility. I'd be pissed if I were Le Jardin to be left holding the bag. A good lawyer should be able to follow the money (is there any?) of what and who really is behind the curtain at Renamity.

And what is this crap about refunds on a "case by case basis?" It appears that no one received what was advertised so what is to be discussed?
